

Wealden Psychology Institute

Established in Crowborough 1986

Invitation to a two day training Understanding and Preventing Violence

Stefan Sandström TSTA, and Joanna Beazley Richards MSc, TSTA
Friends Meeting House, London Euston NW1 2BJ
Tuesday & Wednesday 6 & 7 March 2012

Participants will teach a model of understanding and treating interpersonal violence. Stefan Sandström will teach his five patterns that are all deeply rooted in the “I’m OK, You’re Not OK” Position and that explain the reasons and remedies for all interpersonal violence.

Joanna Beazley Richards will explore the underlying neurological differences that result from negative life events and the associated emotional and behavioural patterns. The implications for treatment and why particular interventions such as mindfulness are effective with these clients will be explained. The workshop will be based on the relevant research.

About the workshop leaders

Stefan Sandström is a licenced Psychologist, a Teaching and Supervising Transactional Analyst with Psychotherapy speciality and an author of several books on interpersonal violence. He has worked with violent people for twenty years. He is co-founder of the Scandinavian Institute for Transactional Analysis and of Intercultural Competence Management.

Joanna Beazley Richards is a Chartered Psychologist, HPC registered Clinical Psychologist and Teaching and Supervising Transactional Analyst. She specializes in trauma and crime.
